THOREAU DEMONSTRATION ACADEMY

Thoreau Demonstration Academy students engage in real-world hands-on learning through our micro-society program where they build understanding of the demands and responsibilities of real life in the workplace and explore potential career interests. Our learning community offers dual language immersion in French and Spanish, STEM programming, and a range of extended day activities including archery, swimming, and other athletic options. Our TRIBES program creates a positive, safe, and supportive school climate where students learn important life and social skills.

In a world that demands preparation to add value with increasing complexity, our micro-society students have years of experience solving real world problems. Thoreau students learn to think critically, collaborate in diverse teams and connect subject matter and experiences in ways that foster creativity. From the time they enter the building each day, they are citizens aiming to achieve sustainable change in their worlds and ours.

"I really enjoy Thoreau because of the diversity within the school and the whole environment itself. The teachers are great, and I love all the projects we work on in class in groups. We are really able to work on communication and a lot of life skills."
